B. New Business:

1. Gloria Vavricka – General Studies Courses On-line:

Gloria Vavricka discussed promoting General Studies course to be taught on-line. Vavricka stated the target audiences for on-line courses are:

- Non-traditional
- Traditional
- High School Seniors

To stay competitive, UNK is currently offering on-line courses which are being taught by UNK faculty to high school students. The cost is $100 per credit hour. A tuition remission will be granted if the student enrolls in classes at UNK after high school graduation. Once the student is enrolled, he/she will have credit hours waived to off-set the credit hours which were taken in high school.

If more UNK General Studies courses were offered on-line, UNK would market the on-line and video conferences courses statewide. In the summer of 2005, UNK offered three on-line courses which filled very quickly.

If a course is going to be taught on-line there are stipends available to pay faculty for developing on-line courses. Currently, there is a course development stipend of $1,500 and $2,500 stipend for a fully on-line course. Grant programs are also available up to $15,000.

Powell indicated he will meet with the Deans and Department Chairs to promote the General Studies on-line courses if the Council thinks it is a good idea. The General Studies Council will discuss with colleagues as well. The Council will continue discussions at the February General Studies meeting.
